MANY A FRAUD AMONG HONOLULU'S MENDICANTS

DESTITUTION and deception go hand in hand in the daily parade of humanity which appears before Mrs. Berger, manager of the Associated Charities. Long and thorough study of human nature has given Mrs. Berger an insight into the character of the people who daily appeal to her for assistance and, although she overflows with sympathy for the poor, distressed, sick and hopeless of Honolulu, yet her sympathies are tempered with judgment which rarely errs in its ministrations. From morning until night the files of distressed humanity are poured into her willing ears. These tales are sifted and assorted, the true separated from the false, and the work of relief goes on unceasingly. Deception is continually practiced, but generally comes to naught, for Mrs. Berger has now become expert in discerning such cases, and they are given short shrift.

Of professional beggars there are few in Honolulu, and these have been for the most part Porto Ricans who, soon after they came to the Islands and went on the plantations, began to drift into the city. Their numbers increased until at length there were 100 of them housed in the poorest quarters. Immediately they began to beg.
Mrs. Berger's close observation of these people taught her that beggary was inherent in them, and that although they might be assisted by the Associated Charities, they would prefer to obtain their daily bread by alms seeking in the streets and from house to house. Mrs. Berger found these people were able bodied in most cases, although here and there would be found a few sick ones. After reviewing their cases, she came to the conclusion that they were not fit objects for charity. One and all were told that work, and plenty of it for all, awaited them at the plantations. She had nothing for them, as it was only in deserving cases that assistance was given. Circulars in the Spanish language signed by Dr. Alvarez, the Spanish Consul, were distributed, which told them they would not be looked after by charitable organizations. Mrs. Berger told them they would fall into the hands of the police if they did not obtain work, and the would be given terms on the reef.
The reef meant harder work than anywhere else, and finally they began to go back to the plantations. Thus, the Associated Charities did its duty to the community by nipping an incipient pauper colony in the bud.

About the last of the Porto Ricans who have attracted any attention here, was the family which was looked after by the police department a few nights ago, given temporary quarters near the police station, supplied with food and bedding, and whose plaintive stories of destitution appeared in the Advertiser. It was true the old man was sick, but he forgot to tell the kind hearted police that he had been placed in a hospital by Mrs. Berger, his family fed, clothed and sheltered, and that he had run away from the hospital in order to beg again. It was this same family which, headed by the father, after he had mysteriously disappeared from the free bed, surprised Dr. Alvarez one bright morning recently by appearing bag and baggage on his front lawn, asking to be given shelter, food and many other requirements of life. This story of the Porto Ricans is characteristic of all of the colony.

A pitiful case is that of a white woman whose husband, a man of military title, got into difficulties and is now in prison. When her case was called to Mrs. Berger's attention she was utterly destitute, behind in her rent, sick and unable to help herself.
The Associated Charities is now caring for her.

Among those who ask for temporary assistance are a number of ex-soldiers who have served in the Philippines, who came to Honolulu after being discharged, expecting to find work. They generally arrived without spare funds, and not getting work at once, were placed in an embarrassing position.
Mrs. Berger has helped them by giving them meals and assisted them in finding employment.

Recently a very sad case was brought to the manager's attention.
This was of a woman living in one of the most wretched localities in Kakako. She was absolutely destitute when Mrs. Berger went to visit her. Her husband left her about seven months ago, and his whereabouts are not now known, as he has never written. His wife has a baby about three weeks old. The woman lived in one small room, in surroundings of squalor, and had no bed, no stove, no food, no dishes, and not even a change of clothing. She was almost at the point of a brief career of starvation. Better quarters were found for her, medicines, food and clothing provided, and life looks brighter to her today than for many months past.

Another bad case is that of a father and a family of three children, who were deserted by the wife and mother.
The father is infirm in body and mind, and unable to seek a living for himself and his family. Through the Associated Charities the children were sent to the Kona Orphanage on Hawaii, where they are now living. They write often and tell of their bright, happy life in the mountains and of the food which they eat three times a day, something quite novel in their lives heretofore. Another father, who was unable through infirmities to provide for his children, was being taken care of by his mother and sister. The task was too great for them, and the children were also sent to the Kona Orphanage. Cheerful letters from them tell of their delightful existence in a land of plenty.

An American who is married to a native woman, has recently been helped. He was industrious and saved considerable money, which he put into fisheries on another island, but one thing and another caused his savings to dwindle away. He became sick and returned to Honolulu an object of temporary pity. He has been assisted temporarily, and is now practically again on his feet and ready to begin life anew.

There is a class of men, however, whom Mrs. Berger believes she would not be doing right in assisting, except in a few cases. These are sailors, firemen, coal passers and others from the sea, for as a general thing their own methods of living have brought them to want, and being able-bodied, they can get work by applying for it at the proper places.

Mrs. Berger has a heart full of sympathy for several old men who are being looked after by her. Some of them are blind, others infirm and unable to work for their daily bread. They are not sick enough to be sent to the hospitals, and yet not strong enough to earn anything. There is no public institution to which aged and indigent white men can be sent. The Lunatic Home is for indigent Hawaiians only.

The only other public institution is the insane asylum, and few of Mrs. Berger's charges are qualified for that.
She has, however, been able to give them shelter in shacks around town.
It is pitiful to observe the blind doing their own washing, cooking their own meals, and making the most of whatever brightness they can find in their almost friendless condition. Their luxuries are few, and tobacco supplies one of their needs. Through the people who give liberally of old clothing to the Associated Charities, the old men are kept pretty well clothed. Quantities of old clothes are constantly being sent to the Associated Charities, and a place for it all is found by Mrs. Berger.

There are twenty-one nationalities on Mrs. Berger's lists. When a knock is heard upon the door of her office, it takes a wide range of guessing to know just what nationality desires entrance, and she is prepared to hear of vice, crime, destitution, sickness and scores of ills and complaints. Now it is a wife who has been cruelly beaten by her husband and left impoverished when he went away to some other part of the globe; now it is a fatherless family in dire distress; now it is an old man, feeble and sick, who needs hospital treatment; now it is a family behind in its rents; others have no food in the house; some want work; some want clothing; some are able to work, and yet want to be helped.
Some one tells Mrs. Berger of a destitute woman in a squalid place; she visits her and finds a poor, sickly wife and a child, without food and clothing; her husband is a brute who beats her constantly, and yet she clings to him with a devotion which is pitiful in the extreme, and rather than be parted from him she will prefer to stay in her dirt and destitution.

Thus the work of the Associated Charities goes on day by day and week by week. The poor and destitute are benefited, the professional alms-takers are ferreted out, the sick cared for and nursed back to health. The work of the Associated Charities covers the field of all the church charitable societies in the city, and through this co-operation the best results are now being attained.

HAIR WON'T FALL OUT.

If You Kill the Dandruff Germ with the New Treatment.

John N. Fuller, a well known citizen of Colfax, Wash., says: "I had dandruff so badly that it caked on my scalp.
Herpicide completely cured me." Geo.
H. McWhirk, of Walla Walla, Wash., says: "Herpicide completely cured me of a bad case of dandruff of thirty years' standing." They took the only really sensible treatment, a remedy that destroys the dandruff germ. New-bro's Herpicide. Stop dandruff, hair won't fall out, but will grow naturally, luxuriantly. Always itching instantly and makes hair glossy and soft as silk.
At druggists. One bottle will convince any doubter of its merits.

Praise for Universities.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Poultney Bigelow said today: "What struck me most forcibly during my visit to the Middle Western universities was the superiority of such universities as Cornell, Wisconsin, Minnesota, etc., over the many Eastern colleges in giving students to take the lead in practical American affairs. The spirit that is conquering the neutral markets of the world is more stimulated at the headquarters of the Mississippi than at the Atlantic. The intellectual vigor of our Western universities is not yet appreciated."

A Cure for Rheumatism

There would be a great many less sufferers from rheumatism if everybody knew about Halpruner's Rheumatism Cure. Men and women who have suffered for years and who have taken Halpruner's have been cured. It is a medicine of remarkable curative power, and it never fails to benefit those who take it. Its wonderful penetrating powers go to the seat of the trouble and remove pain and inflammation, giving strength and health to the injured and affected parts.

Don't be afraid to use Halpruner's.
It is so harmless the smallest child can take it without the slightest injury.

Don't continue to suffer from rheumatism; go to your nearest druggist and ask him for a bottle of Halpruner's Rheumatism Cure. If he wants to sell you something else insist on Halpruner's.
There is nothing so good and nothing will cure you so quickly—50c and $1 a bottle. Demand the genuine.

Halpruner's

"I know it is fine for rheumatism, or I have tried it with excellent results."
